

A New Water Quality Initiative Serving Southeast Seattle and West Seattle

Every day, pollution from cars, lawns and businesses flows from neighborhood streets into our waterways. Recent research indicates that street sweeping twice a month can remove pollution before it reaches these waters.

Seattle Public Utilities is committed to protecting and improving water quality in our waterways. We are working to find best practices and new technologies to benefit our environment.

This Street Sweep pilot project in your neighborhood will help the City determine if street sweeping is a good addition to our water quality toolbox, helping make our waterways cleaner and healthier for people and fish.

In an effort to reduce the impact of sweeping on you and your neighbors, we will sweep one side of the street one week, and return the following week to sweep the other during the day (8 a.m. – 4 p.m.) when many cars are gone.
