Ranger Kidwell-Ross, the founder and executive director of WSA, is an MBA level economist. For over 25 years he has been the leader in providing information to the power sweeping industry.

During that time, Ranger has helped hundreds of contractors remake their businesses to become more efficient, effective and profitable.

In 1988, Ranger created the first newsletter designed specifically for U.S. sweeping contractors, the Supervac Quarterly, and directed marketing for Schwarze Industries, Inc. for over 15 years. He also founded and edited the first national publication for the power sweeping industry, American Sweeper magazine, as well as the encyclopedic online resource for power sweeping currently found at WorldSweeper.com.

Ranger is also the author of Fundamentals of the Power Sweeping Business, what many in sweeping have called "the contractors how-to bible of the industry." Over 250 letter-sized pages in length, this publication has helped hundreds of contractors attain a greater level of success. First written in 1996 and last updated in 2014, the award-winning Fundamentals is in its 12th printing.

Ranger has traveled the world as an industry ambassador, teaching and learning from power sweeping professionals in over a dozen countries in addition to his native United States.
